THE OXFORD DEMOCRAT PROSPECTUS.

Every week, two or three of our original poetry will be published upon the fourth page and one or two upon each page. Poetry has been called "the language of the soul," and it is the perfect definition of true poetry. It sometimes pleases a person more than his or her "poems" in prose, because the publishers are unable to pay the poet for good original stories, and a person is not so satisfied at one work as he is at some other publication. We shall take pains, in the future, to select only the best and most interesting original stories of our countrymen, and such as have a high moral character and influence. No poetry will be published without notice unless paid for as an advertisement. Selections will be made from the works of the distinguished poets of America and Europe, and from the best current literature. We will endeavor to give the taste and sentiment of all selections. All selections will be made with difference to those objects.

SELECTED STORIES.—For stories we are obliged to depend almost entirely upon current publications. The income of country papers is so small that the publishers are unable to pay the author for good original stories, and a person is not so satisfied at one work as he is at some other publication. We shall take pains, in the future, to select only the best and most interesting original stories of our countrymen, and such as have a high moral character and influence. No story will be published without notice unless paid for as an advertisement. Selections will be made from the works of the distinguished poets of America and Europe, and from the best current literature. We will endeavor to give the taste and sentiment of all selections. All selections will be made with difference to those objects.

SCRAPS OF WIT AND HUMOR.—Receipts for Housekeepers, Farmers, and everybody; hints regarding health; beautiful passages; literary notices; etc., will be carefully selected, edited and published. One receipt for the manufacture of household articles, a simple remedy for a cold, worth more than a year's subscription to a paper in which it was found. A funny item about a dyspeptic laugh and his health is invaluable to the extent of many dollars. The receipt of some eminent divine or of some great statesman and strong, which he could not get in dollars. A few words regarding some political matter, often elevates one and gives him a new vision and strength, which he could not get in dollars. EDITORIALS.—Dr. Thomas H. Brown is our political department in charge. Articles written by him appear every week. Our readers will find in having such an able gentleman handling a general writer to inform them in regard to political matters. He has not been too long in politics for a number of years; but has all this time informing himself, and adding to his knowledge. He is now in the position of Political Editor. He is not an office holder and hence is charged with no improper personal motives giving expression to his views on matters of public interest. Editorials upon matters of general interest will be furnished free of charge. More than editorial reports and criticisms on Local Readings and Musical Entertainments will be given when opportunities offer themselves.

We shall endeavor to furnish current news in an abridged form, every week, derived from the many dailies, and weekly papers, which compose our exchange list.

ADVERTISING.—Read what some of the successful business men in the country say about advertising:

"There is no instance on record of a well sustained enterprise of judicious advertising failing of success is owing to my liberality in advertising."
—Bonner.

"I have never advertised my productions and made money."
—Charles Longworth.

"Moderate and persistent advertising is a sure way to wealth." —Stephen Girard.

"If you invest one dollar in business should I not one dollar in advertising that business."
—T. Stewart.

"Advertising has furnished me with a competitor without the aid of advertisements I could have nothing in my speculation. I have the most complete faith in printer's ink. Advertising is the road to business."
—Barnum.
